

Emergency Briefing on Climate and Nature

September 30, 2026 Tokyo

Opening Session

Yuichi Moriguchi, Professor Emeritus, University of Tokyo, specializing in circular economics.

Professor Emeritus, University of Tokyo; Honorary Researcher, National Institute for Environmental Studies. Graduated from the Department of Sanitary Engineering, Faculty of Engineering, Kyoto University, PhD (Engineering). Researcher, Integrated Analysis Department, National Institute for Environmental Studies; concurrently appointed to the Planning and Coordination Bureau, Environment Agency.

After serving as a trainee at the OECD Secretariat, Director of the Research Center for Circular Economy and Waste Management at the National Institute for Environmental Studies, and Professor of Urban Engineering at the Graduate School of Engineering, University of Tokyo, he served as a Research Director at the National Institute for Environmental Studies from April 2019 to March 2025. From October 2023, he became a member of the Third Section of the Science Council of Japan for the 26th and 27th terms, and Chairperson of the Environmental Studies Committee for the 26th term. He is a former member of the International Resource Panel of the United Nations Environment Programme (2007-2016) and a former president of the Japan Life Cycle Assessment Society (2017-2020). His specialties are environmental systems engineering and urban environmental engineering.

