

Emergency Briefing on Climate and Nature

September 30, 2026 Tokyo

Opening Session

Climate Security : Ken Sekiyama, Professor, Graduate School of Advanced Integrated Studies in Human Survivability, Kyoto University

He holds a PhD in International Cooperation from the University of Tokyo, a PhD in International Politics from Peking University, a Master's degree in Sustainability Studies from Harvard University , and a Master's degree in International Relations from the University of Hong Kong. After gaining experience in policy practice at the Ministry of Finance, where he was involved in budget formulation and drafting legislation, and at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, where he was involved in ODA planning for Asia and negotiations of economic partnership agreements, he worked at several universities and public interest foundations before joining Kyoto University in April 2019. His areas of expertise are international political economy, international environmental politics, and comparative political economy. His recent publications include "Climate Conflict" (Kobunsha Shinsho) and "The Logic of Climate Security" (Nikkei Business Publications).

